

Music and Musicians

MISS HAZEL BARNES, CONTRALTO.

Who Will Go to Paris to Continue Her Studies.

Utah people at Seattle during the recent visit of the Tabernacle choir were most pleased with the reception given Utah's young contralto, Miss Hazel Barnes, who leaves Monday next for Paris to continue her musical studies. Miss Barnes remained in Seattle after the departure of the choir, to assist Mr. Evan Williams, the noted tenor, in a concert. He spoke most highly of her work, and the fair managers made even more flattering offers for her to sing a solo at the fair.

Miss Barnes was greatly encouraged by Mr. Prothero, the adjudicator at Seattle, who said that, her work in the solo where she won the Elsteddoff contralto first prize at Salt Lake last year, exceeded anything he had ever heard in a soloist at any Elsteddoff he had attended.

Tracy Cannon will play tomorrow morning preliminary to the service in the First Congregational church, a "Prelude in C" by Holms, and "Elegy" by Gibson, "Evening Star" by Wagner. The offertory will be "Morning Star" by Faulkner, and the postlude, "Sortie in G," by Lemmens.

Miss Helen Greenwood, soprano and pianist, will appear in concert next Friday evening, at American Fork, assisted by Miss Lettie Owens, H. W. Douglas, and J. W. Montgomery.

An itinerary is being arranged for a state tour of the Imperial quartet, who made such a favorable impression not long ago on a trip through the north-west. The quartet is composed of Fred C. Graham, Thomas Ashworth, Victor Christopherson and Willard Squires. Mr. Graham is arranging for the trip, which is to extend as far south as Monroe, Utah.

Held's hand is in receipt of a set of oratorios, chimes, from the Toledo manufactory, a cost of $285. They are of a very fine tone and appearance. The band continues, through this good weather, giving Saturday evening concerts on the balcony in front of the Amuseur building on Main street.

New York letters say that Mr. Brines has a $900 per annum church choir position in New York, with other opportunities to keep him busy teaching until the Schubert choir season opens for him in their operatic companies.

A. J. Kisselberg has opened a studio for the instruction of vocal culture at 414 Security & Trust building.

Miss Emily C. Jessup is supervisor of music in the Grantville schools.

Edward Fitzpatrick, the violinist, will be given a complimentary reception concert next Friday evening in the First Congregational church, for which Mr. Skelton is arranging a program.

Mrs. J. H. Robinson will sing an "Ave Maria" by Santley at tomorrow's 11 a. m. service in the Catholic cathedral.

Mrs. Emma Ramsey Morris is in receipt of a beautiful pair of polished snooker drums, from the Philharmon of Bell Center, O., one of the veteran musicians of the Civil war who participated in the late G. A. R. encampment. Mrs. Morris had promised the doctor she would learn to drum if he sent her the sticks, and now she proposes to carry out her part of the agreement.

Miss Jennie Sands of this city, who is studying vocal culture in Europe, has left Dresden for Berlin, where she is now studying with Mme. Correll. Miss Sands has won many compliments for the rapid and intelligent progress she has made.

The passenger department of the Short Line has been notified through government sources, that the Philharmon Constabulary band, which created such a stir in this country, will be in the states again next summer for a general tour. The band will play in Salt Lake under government direction. The band played in Denver the last three days of last week, leaving Monday morning for Seattle, where it is to play for its conductor, Capt. W. H. Loving, a negro graduate of the New England conservatory at Boston, and an accomplished musician.

Mr. D. P. Parsons, who will sing two solos at the morning service in the Unitarian church tomorrow, is well known among musical people in Ogden, where he has sung with acceptance in the principal churches. This will be his first appearance as a singer in Salt Lake.

SALT LAKERS IN GOTHAM.

(Special Correspondence.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The St. Paul, which came in last Tuesday night, numbered among its passengers Mrs. C. E. Looze and her daughter, both left for the west the same evening. Mrs. and Miss Looze left Utah with President Nathan H. Lund and party early in the summer for a tour of Europe and are now on their way home. The other members of the party having arrived in Utah some time ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell of Salt Lake are here, Mr. Russell being on business and also visiting his brother, Isaac Russell, and wife.

This last week saw the arrival of Mrs. Frances E. Pryor from her summer residence in Saratoga, where she was joined by her daughter, Miss Montana Pryor some time in July and together they have spent a very delightful season.

Last Wednesday at the Lusitania backed out of her berth and No. 16, North River, a crowd of friends stood on the landing waving handkerchiefs and bidding God speed to Elder Guy Thatcher and wife who sailed that day for Holland. Just as the boat swung all loose, Ross Beattie, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Thatcher arrived from the country where he and other missionaries are traveling, and was in time to see them as they slowly disappeared down the bay. Elder Beattie only remained in the city one day rejoining his companions on Thursday.

Elder Nathaniel Smith, son of Elder John Henry Smith, who has filled a mission in England finishing the last six months in the Eastern States, arrived in the city last Tuesday from Vermont and will leave for home in a few days going by way of Washington and Chicago. Elder Smith has performed an honorable mission in England and here, taking part in the Sunday schools and choir when required, and making his way to a certain measure of success in his efforts to win converts. He has drawn to himself a host of friends from all circles where he has labored.

The coming season is with us and the student week will see some of last year's young people here in the familiar places around Columbia university. Miss Pearl Wedder of Salt Lake is the first to arrive and make arrangements for studies in music. She will locate near Columbia in the western colony.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Boyle, who have been living at Ogden, N. J., all summer, return to the city this week, and will locate at 515 west One Hundred and Twentyfourth street for the winter. Mr. Boyle has still another year in the geological department of Columbia before graduating, and he and wife decided to leave their comfortable quarters in the country and live near the city.

How Two Americans in London Made Kipling Victim of a Joke

London Literary Letter

(Special Correspondence.)
LADY DE BATHE, a well-known English literary figure, was the victim of a delightful joke the other day, according to a story which is now going round the literary clubs and which has not been denied by any of those who are said to have taken part in it. Incidentally it may be remarked that two of the chief actors were Americans.

Kipling lives at Burwash, in Sussex, where he has a charming country house. Among his friends is Ralph D. Blumfeld, editor of the Daily Express, one of the most popular of London's "evening papers." Mr. Blumfeld, who before he settled down to London journalism was a leading member of the staff of the New York Herald, is also a lover of country life and has a charming house at Dunmore, in Essex. A few days ago he was visiting Kipling at Burwash and he expressed his admiration for the poet's place.

"I should like to take the house and all down to Dunmore," he said. "All right," said Kipling. "You can have it. Just have Selridge send down some men to move it." Selridge, it may be explained, is Hardy Gosson, secretary to the Olympic games, who before he settled down to London journalism was a leading member of the staff of the New York Herald, is also a lover of country life and has a charming house at Dunmore, in Essex. A few days ago he was visiting Kipling at Burwash and he expressed his admiration for the poet's place.

When Blumfeld got back to London he called up Selridge and told him all about it. Selridge, in turn, called up Kipling, falling into the spirit of the thing, gave orders that a force of men should go to Burwash the next morning to move Kipling's house and all its contents to Dunmore. The men, who were in the secret, got Kipling out of bed the next morning. They have not reported what the poet said when they explained their error to him. But Kipling's house is still at Burwash.

HOW SHE GOT HER PLOT.
A pretty story is connected with Mrs. de Courcy Laffan's new novel, "The Heart of Doreen," which is to be published this autumn. Mrs. Laffan, of course, as well as being one of the most popular of women novelists, is the wife of the Rev. de Courcy Laffan, secretary to the Olympic games, who before he settled down to London journalism was a leading member of the staff of the New York Herald, is also a lover of country life and has a charming house at Dunmore, in Essex. A few days ago he was visiting Kipling at Burwash and he expressed his admiration for the poet's place.

The story of "Doreen" is founded on that of a real woman. One day Mrs. Laffan was at a charity concert in London, when she noticed that a young girl, who was ill, she assisted her out of the hall and when the woman had recovered a little, offered to drive her home. The woman accepted the offer gratefully, and on the way she told Mrs. Laffan that her guest seemed to be in deep trouble and offered her sympathy. "I am in trouble," was the reply. "I am to appear in the divorce court tomorrow."

"For a minute I was alarmed," said Mrs. Laffan to me the other day. "For of course I didn't know in what capacity she was to appear, but it turned out that she was a deeply interested woman. Her husband was as bad as a man can be, but he never struck her, and in England it is necessary for a woman to go to court to get a divorce. She was in addition to unfaithfulness, to obtain a divorce. The man knew this and traded on it and he said to say to this poor woman, 'I won't strike you, I will have a rod in my hand to beat you with. You can have my boy until he is 16, but then I will take him and make him just such a man as I am.'"

"The Heart of Doreen" deals with the unfairness to women of the English divorce laws and is largely founded on the life of the woman whom Mrs. Laffan befriended.

LILY LANGTRY'S MEMOIRS.
A good many people in English society are waiting rather anxiously for the publication of Lady de Bathe's memoirs. Lady de Bathe, of course, is Lily Langtry, the former actress and beauty and friend of royalty. It is announced that in it she is going to tell some things that up to now have been whispered only in the clubs and boudoirs, and she adds proudly in the introduction to her declaration that "it needs a lot of pluck to say what you want about pluck."

university for the coming year. Mr. Boyle has been doing field work with several professors all summer, not wishing to relinquish his geological studies for a vacation.

The arrival of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Odell and daughter, and his sister, Mrs. Wright of Idaho Falls, from Europe last Thursday, where they have been touring in their car, all summer, was a pleasure to their friends here. On Saturday morning when the Odell party left for their trip overseas, they took leave from their friends Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Dinwoody, old friends of the Odells, Mr. Dinwoody going as far as Albany with them, and Mrs. Dinwoody continuing on to Chicago. The party with her friends will take the train for Utah, the car being shipped from that point.

A more delightful trip at this time of year can hardly be imagined than traveling over the country in an automobile and with such a congenial party.

Mrs. Dinwoody has shared her husband's mission, laboring in the west, her two little boys having gone home in May last. Mrs. Dinwoody has acted as organist here and elsewhere in the missionary field and has been a long assistant to her husband in his labors. She will be greatly missed in this conference, where her affable manner has won scores of friends in the branch and among those not in the Church.

It is certainly with regret that the entire Brooklyn branch sees the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Christopherson for Baltimore, where they go for the next two years. Mr. Christopherson who took up the study of medicine as a profession two years ago, has been identified with Bellevue but this summer's deliberation on the matter, has decided him to enter the Johns Hopkins Institute of Medicine in Baltimore. The remaining two years, locally Mr. and Mrs. Christopherson have been great favorites with all the Utah colony and their decision to leave is a great disappointment to friends here who had regarded them as residents for some time to come. Only good wishes from every one with them when they leave next Thursday, and we all hope to see them again before home and the west claim them for good and all.

At today's services of the Latter-day Saints, Elder Heber J. Grant, was the speaker. A more pleasant surprise can hardly be imagined than was the appearance of Elder Grant among us. Insurance business has brought him here, and a convention to be held at Frontenac in the Thousand Islands in the interest of insurance. Elder Grant will be in the city on Sunday, and we all hope to see him again before home and the west claim them for good and all.

KNABE

Supremacy

THE KNABE PIANO of today is the result of seventy-odd years of devotion to the development and perfecting of one thing. These threescore years and ten have been employed in making the Knabe better in each detail of tone, touch, durability and workmanship. Three generations of the House of Knabe have given their whole time, thought and energy—their very life—to the accomplishment of the ambition to make the Knabe Piano a near perfection as human skill, ingenuity and modern methods could devise. How well they have succeeded is shown in the New Models of Grands and Uprights now on exhibition in our warehouses. You will at least be interested in seeing and hearing these superb instruments, and we shall be pleased to have you call.

Our special piano proposition will enable you to purchase a Knabe on terms that will suit you.
